Living in Hudson

Hudson is a City steeped in history and tradition, with progressive programs and services that meet the modern needs of the community. Residents take pride in Hudson's excellent school system, tree-lined streets and quality of life that is unparalleled in the area. From the efforts to preserve the historic, Western Reserve charm of the community, to the new First & Main mixed-use retail development, designed to seamlessly blend historic Main Street in the center of town, Hudson has something to offer for everyone. It's no wonder that in 2003, Hudson was voted the #1 Suburb by Cleveland Magazine.

Neighborhood Communities

Hudson offers a variety of new and existing neighborhoods with homes to suit every lifestyle. From historic Victorians to comfortable single-family homes and custom executive properties to luxurious estates, homebuyers will find an array of choices in property, location and home communities. Hudson's low-density neighborhood communities are convenient to shopping and service facilities, parks, recreation centers and schools. Every community is designed to provide a comfortable environment, support services and facilities, opportunities for socializing, pedestrian accessibility, and a sense of identity for area residents.

While the median home price in Hudson is about $300,000, homes are available from the low $70,000s to more than $1 million. Hudson's higher than average land values, beautiful parks, and award-winning school system create an economic incentive for buyers to purchase property in Hudson.

Parks & Recreation

Hudson is home to 20 parks encompassing more than 1,100 acres of park land, which link to the Metro Parks of Summit County and the Cuyahoga Valley National Park System. Bike & hike trails, scenic lakes, ball fields and pavilions offer opportunities for active and passive recreation, along with conservation and preservation. Two private and one municipally owned golf course are located in the City.
